Message from the president:

It's nice to see the daylight longer each day - although many times that translates to more work time! I hope you make time to catch the outstanding programming from PRSA this month: three regular programs and an intensive workshop for APR hopefuls.

You can also see what's coming: June 15 aboard a Holland America cruise ship, Aug. 14 writing workshop with Ann Wylie, and Nonprofit seminar Sept. 24. You will also want to save the date for Michael Smart, nationally-recognized speaker on media pitching, who will touch down in Seattle for a special PRSA program on Nov. 14. You heard it here first!

Enjoy the sunshine, and a little rain, this month and I'll see you at a program soon!

Bev

Upcoming Programs

"Content to Conversion: Is Your Content Driving The Right Path?"

Content has become the catalyst for audience engagement, and the role of earned media in driving organizational success has been strengthened as a result. However, in this rush to content being "king", we have begun to lost sight on what we want that content created to achieve. At the outset of any campaign one must ask; what is the conversion metric we hope to attain to build awareness and spark action. Be it views, shares, a sales; that metric is the key to any content marketing strategy. As your brand (whether B2C, B2B, or Non-profit) provides context around the conversation, we have to ask how your strong and compelling content is driving your desired outcomes.

Michael Pranikoff, Global Director of Emerging Media at PR Newswire, is responsible for educating PR Newswire staff and customers about the role emerging media in marketing communications, and is also heavily involved in the development of products and services for the company. Michael joined PR Newswire in 1998 and immersed himself in the technology industry in and around the D.C. area. In 2003, Michael was named the National Technology Markets Specialist and eventually named PR Newswire's first Director of Emerging Media. Michael maintains profiles across many social networks and social media outlets, connect with him at <http://about.me/michaelpranikoff>.

"The Amanda Knox Story: How did this happen and the role of the media"

In December 2009, an Italian court-backed by the international court of public opinion-convicted Seattle college student Amanda Knox of the heinous murder of her roommate. In 2011, her conviction was overturned, and in March of this year, Italy's Court of Cassation decided to return the appeal decision back to a lower court for review. Knox, whose book, "Waiting to be Heard" was just released, spent four years in prison, the victim of an overzealous, sensation-seeking media, police error and judicial failing. David Marriott, partner at Gogerty Marriott who has worked with Amanda and her family since she was arrested, will present "The Amanda Knox Story: How did this happen and the role of the media" on Tuesday, May 14.

David M. Marriott specializes in crisis management, crisis communication, labor communications, litigation support and media training. Marriott is a 35-year public relations professional, nationally accredited by the Public Relations Society of America, past president of PRSA Puget Sound and a member of the Counselors Academy. His career spans broadcast journalism, politics, corporate and agency public relations. He has been involved with product recalls, labor strife, corporate takeovers, environmental issues, airline disasters, numerous lawsuits and a variety of other highly visible issues; among them the crash of Alaska Airlines flight 261 and most recently, the case of Amanda Knox.

- Cutlip and Center's Effective Public Relations textbook: as low as $50 (9th or 10th edition, used on Amazon)

What is APR?

Accreditation in Public Relations (APR) is a certification program for public relations professionals. The designation signifies a high professional level of experience and competence, and is a mark of distinction for those who demonstrate their commitment to the profession and demonstrate broad knowledge, strategic perspective, and sound professional judgment.

Why earn my APR?

- APR designation demonstrates your knowledge, experience and ethical judgment in PR
- APR designation confers credibility and signifies commitment to the profession
- APR professionals typically earn about 15% more in salary than their non-accredited colleagues on average.
- APR Preferred job listings are increasing nationwide
- Accreditation is a satisfying personal achievement

PRSA Jumpstart Springs to Life for 2013

Jumpstart returned to Seattle this spring with a new location and fresh set of speakers. It attracted over 50 aspiring and working professionals from around Washington.

This year's event was keynoted by Whitney Keyes - author of Propel: Five Ways to Amp-Up Your Marketing and Accelerate Business and professor of Strategic Communications at Seattle University. Her presentation focused on the importance of being open to an evolving career path which may not be linear. Other speakers included Kyle Warnick - Microsoft, who spoke about the importance of personal branding and Mark Firmani - Firmani+Associates, who gave attendees practical advice on how to obtain their first job in PR. Other activities at Jumpstart included mock interviews, resume reviews, a media panel, and small roundtables featuring seasoned PR professionals from various fields.

Thanks to the Jumpstart planning committee for all of their hard work this year, including:

Amy Boyd
Emily Nauseda
Erin Applegate
Dominique L'Eplattenier
Joshua Holland
Jay Peters
Kate Hudson
Shefali Sain
Shelsea Rawson
Stephen Odell
