President's message

In 2014, the APR credential will celebrate 50 years. While the APR is carried by a number of organizations, PRSA members hold the largest number of APRs. If you have thought about going for your APR, why not begin the process this year?

On Nov. 14, we have the incredible opportunity to hear Michael Smart on media pitching - don't miss it! He gets results, and he is an excellent trainer - I heard him speak to a packed house last year at the National convention, and he did it again this year. He's the only presenter at National PRSA who is booked for more than one breakout session!

Holiday Soiree is the new Holiday Gala- remodeled and evolved to a fun, fast-paced after work event Dec. 4 at the new Melrose Market Studios on Capital Hill. Still a great silent and live auction, still desserts - with a different twist. Come celebrate with your friends and colleagues when they receive some of the most prestigious awards in the profession, including the Jay Rockey Lifetime Achievement Award.

See you there!

Perfect pitch: Michael Smart workshop Nov. 14

How to take advantage of the upheaval in the media industry

Michael Smart leads workshops at PRSA's International Conference year after year. Why is he invited back? His ideas generate results.

"In my experience, Michael's guidance is unique because I always come away with specific, actionable steps to tackle whatever PR issue I'm dealing with at the time."

Volunteer Opportunity: PR Gives Back to Nonprofits Event, Dec. 12

PRSA professionals will give the gift of guidance to nonprofits at this community service event. Your expertise is requested to better serve our community. By volunteering two hours of your time, you will guide local nonprofits on best practices, top resources, and increase awareness of your role or firm.

Many nonprofits do not have PR or marketing staff or the budget to hire. Other nonprofits may have staff, and value the opportunity to consult with other PR pros to brainstorm an issue or a need. Two hours of free public relations counsel would be valuable to them.

Date: Dec. 12
Time: 8-10 a.m.
Where: STAR Center, 3873 S. 66th St., Tacoma
Cost: Free event - refreshments provided
Find out more: Cindy Sharpe, APR, President, Sharpe Public Relations, 813-244-2883.

Board members, National delegates elected at Annual Meeting in October

A great slate of new board members and delegates were elected by PRSA members at the Annual Meeting October 16.

Brenda South - second term
Marketing and Communications Committee

Brenda is Executive Vice President, West Coast Technology Practice at Weber Shandwick, with more than 20 years of experience in directing PR and marketing programs for companies across multiple industries including consumer, technology, nonprofit and business to business.

Amy Boyd

Sr. Account Executive

Amy has a BA from the University of Washington and has been in the public relations field for more than four years. She has been a member of PRSA since 2010 and served on the Student Outreach and Jump Start committees.

She is chair of the Seattle Metropolitan Chamber's Young Professional's Network (YPN).

Christina Donegan, APR

Manager, Strategic Communications, Puget Sound Energy (PSE)

Christina has worked in the public relations field for more than 12 years. Prior to joining PSE, she was communications vice president at the Seattle Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce. She received her APR in 2009. She has a BA from Pacific Lutheran University in English and History; an MA in History from the University of Wisconsin; and a Certificate in Public Relations from the University of Washington.

Jocelyn A. McCabe, APR

Vice President of Communications, Association of Washington Business (AWB)

Jocelyn is an 18-year public relations professional, receiving her APR in 2008. She has participated on a number of Puget Sound PRSA committees. Prior to joining AWB, she was director of communications for the Association of Washington School Principals. She is a graduate of the University of Washington with BAs in Editorial Journalism and English/Creative Writing.

Tyson Lin

Strategic Advisor - Community Relations & Promotions, Seattle City Light

Tyson has worked in public relations and the media for more than 10 years. Prior to joining City Light, Tyson was a communications specialist for Make-A-Wish Foundation. He also worked at KING-TV/Northwest News Network. He has an MPA degree from Seattle University.

Assembly Delegates

Troy Brown, APR

Public Relations Director, Brandner Communications

Troy has 15 years of public relations experience and has been a member of the Puget Sound Chapter of PRSA since 2005 and received his APR in 2005. Troy was on the chapter board from 2007 - 2009. In 2003, he was a top 20 finalist in the Toastmasters national competition which draws some 25,000 entrants. He has a BA from the University of Washington and currently is a writing instructor with the Tacoma U of W campus.

Janelle Guthrie, APR

Communications Director, Washington State Attorney General

Janelle is a 20-year public relations professional graduating with honors from Washington State University with a BA in Journalism and Political Science. She is currently a member of the PRSA National Board of Ethics and Professional Standards. She previously served as PRSA National District Council Chair, North Pacific District chair and PRSA Puget Sound Chapter President. She joined PRSA in 1996 and received her APR in 2001.

Beverly Holland, APR

Communication Specialist, The Boeing Company

Bev is responsible for internal and external communications for several Boeing Fabrication sites, including Auburn, Wash. and Portland, Ore. She holds a Master of Science degree in journalism from the University of Illinois, Urbana and has been employed in the public relations profession for more than 30 years. She served as VP of Programs and recording secretary before being elected president of the Puget Sound chapter in 2013. Bev also received the "PR Professional of the Year" award in 2012.

Two new APR accredited professionals

Claude Iosso, APR

City of Bellevue

Now in his 12th year as a communications professional, Claude decided to pursue accreditation to test his skills and network. The process proved useful for both purposes, and he was surprised that he learned a great deal about the PR profession and how he can do his job better.

He says, "As a former journalist and encyclopedia editor, I can write and edit well with an eye to key messages. Now I surprise people at the office with research and measurable objectives. My APR gives me the knowledge and understanding to make the transition from an implementer to a visionary for the organizations I serve."

Toby Nelson, APR

Hunter Public Relations

Toby said the APR process afforded him the opportunity to have his existing knowledge credentialed and verified by a third party. More than that, however, it offered him the opportunity to learn about aspects of the public relations profession to which he had not previously been exposed.

He says, "Since being credentialed, I find that my work takes a more deliberate approach and that my overall view of the profession is more holistic and better informed."

National Accreditation news

PRSA asked independent group, OPG, to examine the accreditation in public relations (APR) program to make recommendations on its improvement. The report by OPG is out and PRSA is taking comments through Nov. 22. To comment, visit the PRSA Blog: The Road Ahead for The APR. The blog post with the OPG report can be found online at <http://prsay.prsa.org/index.php/2013/09/26/the-road-ahead-for-the-apr/>
